

Oregon Forest
Resources Institute

Attention Woodland Owners, Foresters and Wildlife Biologists

Please consider attending this event:

Bat Chat

“Contributions of Managed Forests to Bat Habitat”

Sponsored by
Oregon Forest Resources Institute
Speakers: Mike Rochelle, Wildlife Program Manager, Weyerhaeuser
Jake Verschuyf, Biodiversity Researcher, National Council for Air and Stream Improvement

May 5, 2012 • 1pm

Discovery Museum
World Forestry Center
Free with museum admission.
Seating is first come, first served.

Oregon's managed forests can be excellent habitat for bats and other forest wildlife dwellers. The speakers will feature how wildlife biologists, researchers and land managers work together to leave and create habitat structures on the landscape. This presentation will be of interest to general bat lovers of Oregon and those managing forestlands interested in enhancing bat habitat on their land.

All Bat Chats take place in the Discovery Museum and are included with museum admission.

Bats Chats are being held in conjunction with “Masters of the Night: The True Story of Bats” on view at the Discovery Museum through May 6, 2012

worldforestry.org • 503-228-1367

This event is sponsored in part by the Oregon Forest Resources Institute. As part of our sponsorship, we have received some “Free Museum Admission Coupons.” I will be at the Forest Discovery Museum main entrance from Noon to 1.p.m. on May 5 with 20 tickets for woodland owners, foresters, wildlife biologists and their friends and family. Please join me.

Regards,

Mike Cloughesy
Director of Forestry

317 SW Sixth Ave., Suite 400
Portland, OR 97204-1705
971-673-2944
971-673-2946 facsimile

oregonforests.org