

The Amazon's tallest tree just got 50 percent taller – and scientists don't know how.

(Ifscience.com)

<https://bit.ly/328aClr>

Very informative publication: Organic Fungicides for the Home Gardener.

(FS128E; Dr. Linda Chalker-Scott, WSU; FS128E)

<https://bit.ly/2B3jX1T>

Five insect pests that overwinter in structures.

(Nicole Sanchez, OSU Extension)

<https://bit.ly/2oAm5uS>

Professional credentials and gardening expertise: Arborists.

(Colby Moorburg, gardenprofessors.com)

<https://bit.ly/2VAVESc>

Why do some oak trees produce more acorns than others do?

(Todd Oder, mnn.com)

<https://bit.ly/2q6yJ5P>

Spiders fly using electricity, not wind. “A surprising finding potentially solves the enduring mystery of how and when baby spiders become airborne.”

(Andrew Patterson, cosmosmagazine.com)

<https://bit.ly/2mM19QH>

Variegated plants mix it up!

(Joram, plantsandpipettes.com)

<https://bit.ly/2IK6r7H>

Fertilizers — a cautionary tale. “Gardeners are assaulted with marketing campaigns nowhere better than in the fertilizer aisle of a garden center. There are so many choices and the labels suggest that fertilizing garden plants is a complicated process that requires specialized products.”

(Jim Downer, gardenprofessors.com)

<https://bit.ly/2IKLDVi>

Publication: Using cereal straw bales in home gardens.

(Dr. Linda Chalker-Scott, WSU)

<https://bit.ly/324KdEW>

I knew it! Based on a survey, men are more likely than women to be ‘very scared’ of bugs.

(Marie Haaland, nypost.com)

<https://bit.ly/2Ilw2h3>

Did you know that earwigs have wings? “An ode to earwig wings, which break standard laws of origami.” Watch the video and see their beautiful wings!

(Douglas Main, nationalgeographic.com)

<https://on.natgeo.com/2VBNqt3>

Late summer pruning: what happens, what won't, and why.

(Dr. Linda Chalker-Scott, WSU; gardenprofessors.com)

<https://bit.ly/35tr3e8>