

Revised publication: How to Control Slugs in Your Garden. Practical tips on how to deal with slugs in your garden, given in both English and Spanish.

(EM 9155-Neil Bell, Amy J. Dreves, OSU)

<https://bit.ly/3t32tfr>

“Can we just quit with the vinegar-epsom salts weed-killer nonsense? It doesn’t matter how safe it sounds if it doesn’t work.”

(Ohio State University Extension)

<https://bit.ly/3dbXuUp>

Soil bacteria could improve crop yields, via fungi

(Michael J. Hass, Cornell University)

<https://bit.ly/3uFaTtN>

NEW SECTION IN THE PNW HANDBOOK: Plant Viruses: Dead or Alive?

(Jay Pschdeidt, OSU)

<https://bit.ly/2PKMnsF>

Dirty Dozen? Not so fast... Each year, the Environmental Working Group (EWG) issues a list of foods – the so-called ‘Dirty Dozen’ – which it considers to have the highest pesticide residues.

(Cornell University)

<https://bit.ly/3tc7qCH>

This robot uses AI to pollinate greenhouse tomatoes.

(Agrotectire.com)

<https://bit.ly/3mCGBVZ>

My soil is crap. Or is it?

(Jim Downer, Garden Professors.com)

<https://bit.ly/3g1MYk3>

Bizarre 'worm tornado' in New Jersey has scientists baffled.

(Mindy Weisberger, livescience.com)

<https://bit.ly/3wOksJ0>

The AAS (All-America Selections) judges pick their favorite plants.

(All-America selections.org_

<https://bit.ly/3g6xb3P>

To mulch or not to mulch? It shouldn’t even be a question.

(Linda Chalker-Scott, WSU)

<https://bit.ly/3t7rOA9>

Understanding mysteries of plant diseases: Diagnosis and Detection (Part 2 of 3 in this blog series)- *Something is wrong?

(Jim Dower, Garden Professors.com)

<https://bit.ly/3t7TucX>

Watch the Video! -The Uncommon Berry Patch. A presentation that covers some less-commonly grown berries for the home garden as well as some native fruits found in western Oregon.

( Neil Bell, Dr. Bernadine Strik, OSU)

<https://bit.ly/3fZCNwH>